WELCOME!

The St. Barth Weekly is happy to be back for its fourth season. The Weekly is designed to help you put your finger on the pulse of the local community. Featuring an English résumé of the top stories in our French newspaper, Le Journal de Saint Barth, as well as original articles in English, The St. Barth Weekly is the only completely English-language newspaper on the island. It is distributed on the island every week from November through the end of July. Our most exciting news is that each Friday, The Weekly is also available online at Saint Barth Online (www.st-barths.com), the wonderful web site launched in 1996, and now run by our friends Bruno and Géraldine Colletas. Thanks to them, you can download every edition of The St. Barth Weekly, so that no matter where you are in the world, you can stay in touch with your favorite island.

ECUMENICAL CHRISTMAS SERVICE IN LORIENT

For the third year in a row, Christmastime provides the occasion for a joint ecumenical ceremony that will take place at the Catholic Church in Lorient, Sunday, December 17, at 6:30pm. The event marks the harmony between the island's two major faiths, Anglican and Catholic. As they did last year, the island's two choirs will join forces and perform together as part of this special service that celebrates "Unity In Diversity." Their songs, in both French and English, will accompany prayers and readings by Catholic priest Sylvère Numa and the Anglican reverend Charles Vere Nicoll, the leaders of the two religious communities. At the piano will be Charles Darden, music director for the Anglican Church and the Chorale de Bons Choeurs, while Ghislaine Gumbs, director of the Catholic choir, will serve as music director for the evening. The service will conclude with a message of peace and unity that was written in collaboration by the two religious leaders and which will be read in French by Father Numa and echoed in English by Reverend Vere Nicoll. Based on the crowd that attended last year's Christmas service and the large number of people who remained after the ceremony, a friendship toast will be served at the conclusion of the event.

Christmas Services at the Anglican Church

On Sunday, December 24 at 7:00pm and Monday, December 25 at 9:00am, Christmas services will be led by Reverend Charles Vere Nicholl at the Anglican Church in Gustavia. The Chorale de Bons Choeurs, directed by Charles Darden (who is also the music director of the Anglican Church), will add its voices to a program of prayers, readings, and hymns. Laurent Cléquin, a soloist in the choir, will sing "Minuit Chrétien," which he sang beautifully at the ecumenical Christmas celebration held last Sunday evening at the Catholic Church in Lorient, uniting the island's Catholic and Anglican communities.

Paths leading to the beaches will be improved

Municipal officials have decided to acquire a glass-crushing machine to deal with glass collected on the island. They also decided to improve the paths providing public access to the island's beaches. These decisions represent new budget items.

Various items were on the agenda at the municipal council meeting last Friday night. As usual, numerous residents who can ask questions or make comments under the banner of "participatory democracy" attended the meeting.

The council met for almost hours in order to discuss the 20 items on the agenda. A supplemental budget of slightly more than two million euros for 2006 was unanimously approved by all present. This allows an increase to the initial municipal budget of more than 37 millions euros, which was voted on last March 29. In terms of operating expenses, an additional 400,000 euros will be dedicated to sanitation issues, and 100,000 will go toward the recruitment of new personnel. Under the title of investment, a community aid grant of 100,000 euros expected from the Regional Council will be used to enhance the public/sports area in Anse des Cailles. The municipality will also acquire a glass-crushing machine for 75,000 euros so that the glass collected for recycling can be crushed directly on the island. A sum of 65,000 euros was allotted for the improvement of access paths to the beaches. "This is a necessity as certain paths, such as the one that leads to Colombier, become difficult to use due to erosion from rain water," explained mayor Bruno Magras.

"How will the maintenance of these paths be decided and is there a list of such paths?" asked Maxime Desouches, who represents the opposition to the mayor's political position. "Certain paths are private, but those I am talking about are recognized as public access and are not contested," answered the mayor, who continued by nothing that Fort Karl, located near the Hospital de Bruyn in Gustavia, has been acquired by the Littoral Conservancy. This public agency, which is responsible for the protection of nature and coastlines, will make a study of the condition of the fort, then turn its management over to the municipality. Finally, the island's two private schools will benefit from donations: 25,329 euros for Ecole Sainte Marie and 30,976 euros for Ecole Saint Joseph.

Erosion from rainwater is one of the reasons that it becomes difficult for hikers to use certain paths leading to various island beaches, such as the one that leads to Colombier.

Fort Karl Now A Protected Site

The historic Fort Karl site in Gustavia belongs to the French Ministry of Defense. Numerous private developers have made proposals to the municipality with an eye toward building there. In 2002, in order to guarantee definitive protection of the site, the municipal government requested that the fort be placed under the control of the Littoral Conservancy.

On December 7, 2006, a delegation from this public agency, led by its assistant director, Bernard Gérard, who was accompanied by Marc Duncombe, their overseas representative, came to Saint Barth to announce the good news: On December 3, at the Corderie Royale in Rochefort sur Mer, at the national headquarters for the organization, Mme Michèle Alliot-Marie, Minister of Defense, signed a partnership agreement in which the ministry agreed to give 37 historic sites to the Conservancy, including Fort Karl. The official transfer should take place in early 2007: and the good news is that this promontory will now be protected in perpetuity and remain accessible to the public.

Christmas Village On The Quai Général de Gaulle

This year, Santa's workshop will move to the tropics and be set up in Saint Barth to celebrate "an old-fashioned Christmas." Organized and run by the non-profit group, Ouanalao, a Christmas village will transform the main dock in Gustavia from December 17-23, with its official opening on Sunday, December 17 at 3:30pm. Booths representing old-time Christmas celebrations, decoration workshops, and various activities will all be accompanied by local Christmas music. On the afternoon of Sunday, December 23, the last day that the village will be open, Santa Claus himself will make a special appearance. His visit will also be the occasion for various ateliers and games, as well as the distribution of Christmas gifts for children.

Music

Virtuoso harpist Claire Galo-Place in Saint Barth

Claire Galo-Place performs in a benefit concert for the Rotary Club on Friday evening. After winning the international Soka Harp Competition in Japan in 2003, harpist Claire Galo-Place began a serious career as soloist and chamber musician. In an effort to make this magical instrument, that arouses so much curiosity, more well-known, and to make classical music more accessible to a wider audience, she presents concerts in the form of "historical musical promenades." The idea is to introduce each piece she plays by explaining the aesthetic tastes of the period, and situating the piece in the evolution of musical language in general and the evolution of music for the harp in particular.

Claire Galo-Place started her musical studies in 1987, and made her debut at the early age of 15. After obtaining a gold medal at the Douai Conservatory, winning the City of Paris Prize, and a first place prize at the Troyes Conservatory, Claire was the 2001 winner of the Lovoisier grant from the French government. This allowed her to continue her studies in the United States, where she took classes with Susan MacDonald and received her Master's degree (harp soloist). The concert will be held on Friday evening, December 15, at the Capitainerie on the main dock in Gustavia, at 7:00pm. Tickets are 25 euros.

Kasika & Benzo at ASCCO on December 21

If 'Chanté Nwel' means the singing of Christmas carols in Creole, then Kasika & Benzo is certainly the most popular group from Guadeloupe to sing Creole Christmas songs. They will appear in Saint Barth on December 21 for a big holiday celebration organized by ASCCO in Colombier. Kasika & Benzo was formed in 1997 at the initiative of the municipality of Pointe-à-Pitre, which wanted to organize a Christmas carol event on the Place de la Victoire. Déclic Communication noted the success of this event and suggested that the musicians, who were not officially a group, make an album. Released in November 1997, the album was a huge success. In December 1997, they organized a second concert, this time taped by RFO television and broadcast during the Christmas holiday period. Albums, concerts, and tours followed in Guadeloupe and throughout the Caribbean. Kasika & Benzo were even invited by the municipality of Nantes to perform in the Erdre Festival. This year marks the second time they will appear in Saint Barth: the first time was in December 2003 when Romy and Cactus Production were able to bring one of the most popular Christmas groups to the island. This time, it is ASCCO who is responsible for their appearance. This free concert and Christmas carol event will take place on the tennis court at ASCCO in Colombier.

Telethon

35,978 euros pledged in 2006

The 2006 Telethon, held last weekend, raised a total of 35,978 euros in Saint Barth alone, via various activities organized by non-profit associations and at the pledge center in Gustavia. The grand total of monies raised in the Northern Islands will be known at the end of the week, as the associations in Saint Martin had not yet reported their results when The Weekly went to press.

The staff at the municipal swimming pool in Saint Barth had set a goal of swimming 200 kilometers: a distance they almost reached as their swimmers made it to 150 kms, with students, swim clubs, and with activities lasting well into the late hours of the night. By the end of the weekend, ALC collected 2,270 euros: a great success!

Les Francs Archers, who invited everyone to come try out their dexterity at the archery range in Saint Jean, collected 315 euros.

Visual and performing arts were in the spotlight in Gustavia where the association Saint B'Art organized its annual Arts Festival, held this year upstairs at the Capitainerie, and including the annual painting competition, a concert by the students of St. Barth Harmony, the island's Suzuki violin school, singing with the Escapade and Bons Choeurs choirs, theatre with the troupe SB Artists, and films presented by the St. Barth Film Festival. The various artistic activities raised more than 835 euros: hats off to all for their efforts. And the association Sauvegarde du Quartier de Public (ASP), which organized a torchlight march through the streets of Gustavia, raised more than 2,300 euros.

water gym groups taking turns doing laps in the pool from Thursday through Saturday. Approximately 150 diplomas were distributed to the kids who raised a total of 74 euros.

Many other events that took place around Saint Barth last weekend in support of the Telethon demonstrated the island's support for this national fund-raising event. A second nautical challenge took place in Corossol, where the Association of Corossol (ALC) held a 25-hour marathon of events in the water and on the beach,
